What matters the most for middle-grade students?

Motivation

As motivation increases, a child's ability and confidence as a reader also increases. A child who is motivated to read will read more deeply, widely, and more often. The Read Side by Side Reading Program attends to motivation through high-interest novels and nonfiction trade books.

Knowledge

It is well founded that knowledge is the best predictor of reading comprehension. The Read Side By Side Reading Program carefully builds students' vocabulary and world knowledge. The sequence of books in each unit of study propels knowledge development, and adjunct non-fiction articles build knowledge further for students.

Explicit Instruction

Students learn to read strategically to monitor and fix-up comprehension in texts of increasing difficulty. Scripted lessons in the program value teacher autonomy and aid in keeping instruction explicit.

Transfer of Training

It is not enough to teach strategies; they must be internalized and applied by the reader. A three-part curriculum design supports students as they move from modeling and guided practice in read-aloud, to independent practice in book clubs and independent reading.

The Read Side by Side Reading Program provides a highly motivating curriculum design, tailored specifically to the needs of middle-grade students.

Literacy Block

Students in grades 3-5 spend 90 minutes a day reading and writing.

Students in grade 6 spend 45 minutes a day reading and writing, alternating between read-aloud and book club across the year.

1 Read-Aloud

TEACH - MODEL - GUIDE - ASSESS

10 Minute Vocabulary Routine

Teaches word learning strategies: morphemes and context clues.

35 Minute Read-Aloud Lesson

Models metacognition, comprehension strategies and monitoring.
Incorporates diverse media.

Engages students in discussion and writing about reading.

2 Book Club

RETEACH - PRACTICE - COLLABORATE - ASSESS

5 Minute Whole Class Lesson

Teaches the transfer of skill from read-aloud to book clubs.

40 Minute Work Time and Collaboration with Peers

Differentiates text and task demands.

Engages students in reading and writing.

Encourages discussion and response.

3 Extended Reading

IN CLASS - AT HOME

High Interest Reading

Students select books from the classroom library book boxes to read in class or take home.

Other home reading resources are available, including home reading kits, book bags, and summer school materials.

A Text-Structure Approach

THE C. I. A. APPROACH

Students learn to read like detectives as they are given a step-by-step method for reading a chapter book or longer nonfiction. Students learn how to read a book.

1. Divide the number of pages in the book by four.
2. Mark the end of each quadrant by using sticky-notes.
3. Read using the C. I. A. Approach (Collect-Interpret-Apply)

Alignment to Standards

COMMON CORE (2010) & NEXT GENERATION (2017)

Students practice all anchor standards in every text.

The CIA Approach	Anchor Standards
Collect Critical Information	Key Ideas & Details Standards 1-3
Interpret the Text	Craft & Structure Standards 4-6
Apply to Your Life	Integration of Knowledge Standards 7-9

Text Selection

The program prides itself in utilizing authentic literature students can find at the library or bookstore. Many of the books in the program are award winning—rich in vocabulary.

The sequence of texts is intentional, with one unit building the background knowledge for the next. Students make connections within and across texts and broaden their understanding of people and the world.

Texts increase in complexity as students progress across a school year, and across the 3-6 band. The CCSS three-part model is used to measure text complexity. Qualitative and reader and task demands trump the quantitative demand as appropriate.

Assessment & Intervention Guide

Aligned to the Science of Reading

A reading program should conform to the science of reading—the body of knowledge of research on reading and reading instruction. The critical components of the science of reading outlined below include the five pillars of the National Reading Panel (NICHD, 2000) as well as motivation and the development of knowledge. All are essential to student’s reading success in grades 3-6. The Read Side by Side Reading Program is built on the science!

Critical Components of Reading Instruction 3-6	Read Side by Side Reading Program Alignment to Science
Motivation & Interest	Utilizes a wide range of texts that appeal to middle-grade readers, while employing purposeful and engaging activities that increase collaboration and a sense of achievement and celebration of oneself as a reader.
Oral Language	Lessons in read-aloud and book club increase students’ oral language skills through listening, engaging with peers, scripted turn and talk discussion, and developing opinions and ideas.
Foundational Skill (3-6)	Teaches phonological and morphological skill to enhance spelling, vocabulary, and word identification. The decoding by analogy strategy is used to support students who struggle to decode unknown words.
Fluency & Volume	Provides modeling, guided practice, and intervention for students to increase their reading fluency and stamina. Volume of reading is achieved as students read 10 pages or 2,000 words per day.
Vocabulary & Knowledge	Explicitly teaches vocabulary through the daily routine and offers opportunities for students to utilize new words in discussion and writing. Knowledge is built through a variety of text types in thematic units.
Reading Comprehension	Explicitly teaches how to comprehend text through the use of strategies, metacognition, and attention to text structure. Students discuss, take notes and write to synthesize learning.
Assessment	Utilizes a variety of formative and summative assessments in order to guide instruction that is differentiated to the needs of the students. Teachers are directed in how to provide feedback to students.
Effective Instruction	Engages students in whole group, small group, and one-on-one instruction as needed. Instructional techniques are designed to increase student motivation and success.

Supporting Readers

The Read Side by Side Reading Program infuses strategies for sheltered instruction to support EL, Title 1, Special Education, and Highly Capable students. Strategies include:

- Clearly defined language objectives,
- Explicit instruction,
- Differentiation of text,
- Links between past and new learning,
- Instruction in key vocabulary,
- Integration of listening, speaking, and writing,
- Modeling using think-aloud,
- Supplemental media support,
- Visual aids,
- Consistent use of scaffolding,
- Higher level thinking skills,
- Cooperative pairs and groups; and
- High levels of student engagement.

The Assessment and Intervention Guide provides tools for supporting students who struggle with comprehension, vocabulary, decoding, and fluency.

“We have seen great changes in our students this year. The students have loved all of the books in the program. My students are improving in their comprehension and using the strategies in their own reading. We have seen improvement in writing as well, but a love of reading over-all. Thank you for this wonderful program!” ~4th grade teacher

Frequently Asked Questions

What modes of writing are taught?

Writing modes include:

- expository,
- opinion,
- persuasive; and
- narrative.

Students will write both short and long pieces within the program. For a more robust writing program, add our new supplemental units found at readsidebyside.com/writing!

Does the program teach spelling & grammar?

The Read Side by Side Reading Program is not a full, language arts program. Currently, explicit spelling and grammar instruction is not fully provided. Spelling and grammar may need to be supplemented with other programs.

Do the units need to be taught in order?

Thematic units build knowledge across a grade level and the 3-6 sequence. Students will transfer learning from one unit to the next. Texts increase in complexity across the year. For this reason, it is recommended that the units be taught in the order suggested.

How is the use of technology incorporated?

The program does not require any use of technology. Teachers are encouraged to use technology to enhance the program. Online teacher resources are provided at Readsidebyside.com/resources. Teachers will find links to nonfiction articles, and fillable forms to share with students for assessment purposes. All of the student notebooks are also available as e-notebooks.

Units at each grade level have been converted to virtual units for pandemic teaching and homeschool programs.

What assessments are included?

The Assessment and Intervention Guide provides the tools to help teachers build assessments into their daily instruction. Reliable, valid, and useful tools include: surveys, conference forms, running records, exit tickets, checklists, rubrics, and record keeping forms. These tools are available for download at: Readsidebyside.com/resources.
